PROTEGEE OF LINCOLN.

Sad Condition of Mother Ferguson, Famous War Nurse.

FEMINILES AT THE AGE OF EIGHTY

Now She Is Alone and Destitute, Living on the Charity of Friends. Cared for Soldiers in One Hundred and Forty-five Battles—Her War Recollections.

While there is a God and an American country you shall never starve. President Lincoln to Mother Ferguson. She nursed a thousand soldiers during the civil war. She was in 145 battles. Great generals did her honor. They called her "mother of Lincoln's cavalry." Now, broken, helpless with age, Mother Ferguson is living alone in a shabby attic, destitute and penniless at 80, dependent on the charity of a few old friends, all poor themselves. Through a blur of tears she sat the other night fumbling a ticket to the annual G. A. R. excursion when a New York World reporter found her.

"I've never missed one yet," she said broodingly. "I can't bear to think of missing this. I won't miss it. I'll go if I have to go barefoot."

She was alone but for her Catholic prayer book. She lives on the top floor of the frame house at 315 Seventh street, Brooklyn. Plined on the faded mantle which she wore was an old type of Lincoln and about it an ancient miniature flag.

"I've worn it ever since Mr. Lincoln was assassinated," she said. "That pin is a veteran's pin. You see, I'm a vet." The old woman smiled wanly. Her hair is white and her face lined with wrinkles. She is bent with years. Her face is one of mingled gentleness and strength. The nose is Roman, and its contour above great strength. The chin is firm and full of determination, and the eye, although now dim with years, flamed with a wondrous fire when she talked of her battles. Mother Ferguson is not unlike Clara Barton in appearance.

"Oh, I was a great old woman until these last three years," she said. "They all knew me, the generals as well as the boys, and they tipped their hats to me as fine as you ever saw. But now I can't get around any more. My son is in California. So I have to look after myself."

"I can't miss the vets' excursion—I won't. But look at those shoes. They are pretty bad, aren't they?" And the old woman smiled bitterly again. "I'm away off over here in Brooklyn. The old friends don't know where I am, and I can't get around to see them, else I know it would be all right. All I have to look forward to is meeting the soldiers."

Mother Ferguson is deaf and coughs constantly. She told her story with many breaks to the reporter. She wore an old gown open at the throat and sat in a chair which G. A. R. women months ago had made easy with pillows.

"I was in the war from first to last," she said. "I was at Bull Run, and I was at Appomattox. I don't know how old I am. I guess it's 75 or 80. My husband—he's dead these 30 years—joined the First New York cavalry. I remember the day just like yesterday. They were recruited up at 705 Broadway, and it was the very first cavalry company they organized for the Union side. President Lincoln christened it himself, and after that they always called it Lincoln's cavalry."

"We went first to Washington. Oh, those were times! The streets were alive those days. The very air was thrilling with fight. I slept in the house where Colonel Ellsworth—Ellsworth of the zouaves—was staying. He was killed a few days later. I had gone along with the cavalry as a nurse. I wouldn't stay behind, though my husband begged me hard enough. I knew the poor fellows would need somebody to nurse them before the awful war was over, and I was strong then."

"Ah, sir, few eyes have seen what these have. I was with McClellan and Kearny and Franklin and Sheridan and Hunter and Porter and the rest of them. I was at Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Fair Oaks, Chancellorsville, Piedmont and in the seven days' fighting at Gettysburg. 'Gettysburg! Oh, never was there such fighting as there! I have seen much, but nothing like Gettysburg.' The old woman put up her hands as if to shut out the vision. "And I was with Sheridan in his raids up the valley—yes, with Sheridan twice over. Phil! It was the boy!"

"It was at Harrison's Landing I first saw Lincoln. We had been killed, oh, badly. I think he came down there to find out how many of us hadn't been killed. They were all there—the big generals and Lincoln—and they introduced me to him and told him what I had been doing. They said I'd been with his cavalry right through and that I had nursed the wounded and cared for them. 'She's the mother of the cavalry,' they told him. And I was so proud as he stood there looking at me kindly."

"It's just like he was standing here before me now—so tall, with sunken cheeks and such wonderful eyes, set deep in his head. 'And how do you like soldiering?' he asked me. 'I would not be satisfied to be anywhere else,' I told him. 'But it's dreadful, the slaughter.' He looked at me and said that as long as there was a God and an American country I would be taken care of. And he shook hands with me again. This old thing here looks just as he looked then."

"I was right in the fighting. I just couldn't stay out of it. Once General Fitz John Porter had me taken to the rear, and was right in with ammunition wagon. I couldn't stay back. When you are in a fight, you don't know you are fighting. You lose sense of that. You see terrible things, and they don't move you. It's just as though you were feeling had suddenly gone dead. Around you the guns roar, and you see men fall, their heads off, a limb gone or shattered to pieces by a shell. You were in blood, and you don't feel it. After the first flush of it is over you lose sight of everything almost."

"Many of the New York soldiers I helped in the war. There were the Sixty-ninth, the Irish boys, and Corcoran's brigade, and I made coffee for some of the wounded of the Sixty-ninth. And I buried some of the Twenty-first New York boys at Piedmont. "Once when I came home on a furlough I took back with me to Martinsburg, Va., 21 recruits for my regiment. I had enlisted stripes on my arm then, and they came along willingly and politely enough, those recruits. I was always sorry for the young recruits and helped them, for I felt like a veteran after awhile."

"Some new young fellows of the Twenty-first got into trouble and were tied up with their arms above their heads. The poor fellows, I knew, were fresh and I pitied them. I took a big carving knife and set them free. The recruits raised a big row and all the cavalry gathered about them, for they thought if they insisted on doing anything to get about much now."

"Yes, it's lonely here now and I have a hard time getting on, for I can't work. I made my own living for 15 years, but these last four years my health has seemed to fail and I am not the same. But I'll get along somehow. Mr. Romieu passed by the other day when I went to a pension, but it didn't go through. It is lying up there in Washington now. The ladies of the G. A. R. came around to see me before I moved here and were very kind."

"Mother Ferguson smiled bravely. In spite of her age, her eyes and her poverty she still determined to go on the annual G. A. R. excursion."

"I want to see the boys once more," she said. "It may be the last time. I'm very old."

TURKEY WITH PARTRIDGE.

Owner of Gobbler Found Them in Woods Sitting on Some Eggs.

A peculiar and unprecedented friendship has been found to exist between a turkey and a partridge near Monticello, says the New York Sun. Herm Cooney, who resides on the shores of Silver Lake, has a small flock of turkeys, of which he is justly proud. The flock is an expected specimen and has always proved a perfect domestic model, but for some days he has been acting strangely, leaving home in the morning and not returning until late in the afternoon. Affairs grew so bad that he finally resolved the climax when she did not return home at night.

Mr. Cooney, noting the absence of his prize turkey, organized a searching party composed of himself and Patrick Callahan and started out to search the woods. The search had progressed for some time when they discovered the missing turkey, and by its side was a large partridge. The two were covered by a large nest and seemed perfectly contented. They were covered off, and 13 partridge eggs and nearly as many turkey eggs were found in the nest. If the partnership between the turkey and partridge continues to be agreeable, Mr. Cooney intends doing an extensive business in partridge and turkey-raising next year.

ROOF PLAYGROUNDS.

Novel Features of Those Used in New York.

In New York they are now using the roofs of school buildings as playgrounds. The following description is from an article in the June Woman's Home Companion:

"The roof, which is reached by a wide doorway, is solidly floored with brick and is surrounded by a wall six feet in height. It has a roof of wire netting supported by a framework of iron girders. This is 13 feet above the wall, and is meant to prevent missiles being thrown into the streets. The wire is strong, but is so light that the air and sunshine are freely admitted. The roof has an area of nearly 900 square feet. One end is protected by a canvas awning and is furnished with benches. The rest of the space is for games and plays. The chess and checkers are as far as possible, and all recreation is taken there, as a matter of course. Outside of school hours the playground is open to all children, and in the evening the fathers and mothers are invited."

Machine That Tests Mental Ability.

Dr. Carl E. Sonshore of the University of Iowa has invented a testing machine called the "psychograph," which he says will be of special value to employers who desire to determine the relative brightness and ability of applicants for positions. The original model was used to study the school children of Iowa City and was remarkably successful in its workings, picking out the brightest pupils, the dull and the nervous ones, says the New York Sun. Since the test the instrument has been remodeled and much improved.

HOW BIG SEA TURTLES FEED

Take Big Balls of Grass Out to Sea and Eat While Swimming.

With gastronomic taste, naturally, was very curious to know just what kind of terrapin are caught in these waters, for the dish is one much sought after by epicures and forms part of the menu for every first class hotel on the coast. It was told that none is caught about here, but was invited to a sea turtle hunt. Let the reader imagine a turtle weighing all the way from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds, and not long ago one was turned over the beach near Miami that weighed more than 1,000 pounds. Of course I am giving the largest weight, for the average weight of those caught along the coast is about 500 pounds. After they are caught the turtles are kept for a long time, their captors feeding them on cabbage, lettuce, turnips, carrots and sea grasses.

The study of this monster shellfish is a most interesting one. In order to get rid of the parasites that cling to their shells they often enter fresh streams to enjoy a bath, but they are extremely timid and take fright at the least noise. The hunter knows, however, that the turtle feeds in brackish streams where the tide falls rather low and where the turtle grass grows in greatest profusion. The turtles cut great quantities of this grass and then roll it into a ball, cementing it as they roll it with the clay in which the grass grows, and in this way, when they have managed to amass a goodly supply and eat away seaward, feeding as they do.

The professional hunters are quick to detect these balls, and just the moment they do so they set their seines and send their peggers, as the men are called in search of the feeding shells. Men are not the only enemies the turtles have, however, for bears, raccoons and other animals native to Florida destroy great numbers of them.—Jacksonville (Fla.) Cor. Baltimore American.

UNDER AN UMBRELLA.

An Expensive Adventure of a Parisian.

Romieu, the famous Parisian wit, was one day caught in a shower and forced to seek refuge in a doorway of the Opera House. It was 6 o'clock already, and he had an engagement in the Cafe de Paris for that very hour. The rain fell in torrents. There was no carriage to be had. He had no umbrella. What was to be done? While he was lamenting his bad luck a gentleman with a large umbrella passed by. Romieu was seized with a sudden inspiration. He rushed out and grabbed the stranger by the arm and gravely installed himself under the protecting umbrella.

"I am overjoyed to see you," he immediately began. "I have been looking for you for two weeks. I wanted to tell you about Clementine."

Without giving the stranger time to express his surprise Romieu rattled away with gossip and anecdote until he had led the unknown companion to the door of the Cafe de Paris. Then he glanced at him with a face of well feigned astonishment.

"Pardon, monsieur!" he cried. "It seems I am mistaken."

"Believe so," said the stranger.

"Good gracious!" added Romieu. "Be discreet. Don't repeat what I have told you."

"I promise you."

"A thousand pardons!" Romieu hastened within the cafe and amid great laughter told the adventure to his friends. Suddenly one of them said:

"Your cravat is rumpled."

Romieu put his hand to his neck and turned pale. His pin, a valuable sapphire, was gone. On further examination his pocket watch was found to be gone. The man with the umbrella was a pickpocket.—London Tit-Bits.

The Opal Superstition.

There is one superstition of wide range and influence that is directed against one of the most beautiful objects in nature, the opal. A man in my town failed in business, and what do you think he did? Took his opal ring into the yard and smashed it to pieces with a hammer. He described his bankruptcy to that opal, and he intended neither to suffer such misfortune again nor to allow any other one to do so by inheriting or buying that ill starred property.

One of the most amusing instances of a trust in wrong things is reported from New York, where a man took an opal to a jeweler and asked him to sell it, as he had had nothing but bad luck since he owned it. His business ventures having failed, his children having suffered illness and the old scratch having been to pay generally. The jeweler found the gem to have been an imitation. Its falsity must have been obvious to everybody except the victim, because the opal is the stone that has never been even passably imitated.—New Lippincott.

His Emancipation.

Away back in 1771 Josiah Woodbury of Beverly, Mass., thus published his happy emancipation from matrimonial woes:

Beverly, Sept. 15, 1771. Ran away from Josiah Woodbury, cooper, his house place for seven long years. Master Old Moll, alias Tril of Vengeance. He that lost will never seek her; he that shall keep her I will give two Busted of Beams. I forewarn all Persons in Town or County from trusting said Tril of Vengeance. I have here all the old school I can find for, and all my neighbors rejoice with me. A good Busted of bad Wares. Amen! Josiah Woodbury.

It Yielded.

SPRINKLING WAGONS.

The Modern One a Big Improvement on the Old Style.

The modern sprinkling wagon is very different from the old timer. The chief improvement is in the spray head, which enables the driver to control the flow of water much better than the old style. Thus, whether it is a dirt or a macadam road or a stone paved or asphalted street, there can be supplied from the modern street sprinkler just the amount of water required to lay the dust in it without waste.

The spray head on each side has its own valve rod running to the driver's seat, with a step there for the foot. The driver can operate both heads at once, or he can run only one head. He can shut off one or open either one at pleasure. With this sort of wagon the expert driver leaves behind him dry crosswalks with perfectly defined limits, and when he comes to a carriage or a street car upon which he doesn't want to throw water he shuts off the flow on that side and keeps the other going. Sprinkling wagons are made in various sizes, ranging from 150 gallons to 1,000 gallons capacity. There are 20 sprinkling wagons sold in this country nowadays where there were one sold only a few years ago. This great increase in their use is due in large measure to sanitary reasons, to the great extension of good roads and to the common desire for comfort.

Sprinkling wagons are used nowadays commonly in many smaller towns and villages where they were never thought of some years ago. And American sprinkling wagons are now found all over the world wherever sprinkling wagons are used.

They are exported to Australia, Cuba, Porto Rico, South America, South Africa and Europe. The modern sprinkling wagon that the traveler chances to see in Paris or Berlin or Hamburg came very likely from the same factory as the one he saw here before he left home going through his own home street.—New York Sun.

BATH OF THE ORANGE.

The Fruit Needs Much Grooming Before It Is Ready For Market.

Fresh from the tree an orange is still very much alive, with the oil cells expanded and the mystery of growth not yet suspended. Cut off from the sap supply, a change takes place. The skin draws closer to the pulp and gives off moisture that would cause rotting if the fruit were packed at once. But first these dust stained travelers must have a bath.

By the bushel, if only this were the land of the good old bushel basket, the newcomers are dumped into a narrow tank of water at one end of which is a big wheel with a tire of soft bristles. The wheel revolves so that the lower edge works in connection with another set of brushes in a small tank below, and the oranges, after bobbing about in the big tank, pass between the wet brushes and come out bright and clean.

This washer is a neat machine and does away with the more primitive yet picturesque method of hand washing.

At some of the smaller packing houses may still be seen groups of women, sometimes white, sometimes brown skinned, each with a tub of water and brush, scrubbing busily away at the yellow piles that never seem to grow till the last hour of the day. After their bath the oranges are spread out in the sun to dry on long, slanting racks. At the lower end they roll off into boxes, to be carried away to the warehouse for their rest.

An orange needs a deal of grooming, it would seem, before it is ready for market. The washing was not enough. There must be a brushing too. And after the days of curing the oranges are fed into a hopper which drops them single file on to a belt that runs between revolving cylindrical brushes, this for a smooth, shiny look.—Los Angeles Herald.

New Piccadilly Was Named.

It's curious how the names of towns and streets come from something that has been the fashion of the day. Who knows where the word "Piccadilly" originated from, the name of that wonderful street of which it is written that "some make love and some make poetry in Piccadilly." The street was built by a tailor named Higgin, whose fortune was made in a kind of collar called Piccadilly or Piccadilly collar. The name of the day. Of course it is not meant that the street as it stands today was built by him, but he erected a few houses to which he gave the name the street now bears.

A Thoroughbred.

Don't be a thoroughbred. A thoroughbred is well known in cattle and hogs, but very disgusting among men, for the reason that among men a thoroughbred means a man who devotes too much time to having fun, to being a good fellow. Make a specialty of reliability, industry, fairness. Make your specialty a worthy one. Instead of seeing how late you can stay out at night go to bed at regular hours. Sleep will do you more good than a good time. There is no better man than a good citizen, the good husband, the good father, the good son. A thoroughbred is never noted in these directions.—Athenian Globe.

Made a Bad Matter Worse.

The honeymoon was over, and they were comfortably settled in their snug little home. The husband, returning from business, was grieved to find his little wife crying bitterly.

"Oh, George," she sobbed, "a dreadful thing has happened! I had made you a beautiful pie all by myself, and Fido went and ate it."

"Well, never mind, my dear," he said cheerfully. "We can easily afford another dog."—Exchange.

CALIFORNIA LION ROUND UP

An Attempt to Kill Off the Big Cats That Worry Arizona Sheepmen.

John McCarty, territorial game warden, has begun a big round up of California lions in the San Francisco moun- tains, about 150 miles north of Flag- staff, says a Phoenix (A. T.) dispatch to the New York Sun. In that country the big cats are found in larger num- bers than in any other locality in Ari- zona, and the party expects to bag several hundred of them.

At one time the California lion was found in all parts of Arizona, but large territorial and county bounties have caused its extermination in many dis- tricts. At $20 a head hunting the beasts was a profitable business, and some hunters in times past have killed a score of lions in a week. A total of more than $100,000 has been paid in Arizona for scalps in the past ten years. Hundreds of lions beside have been shot by cattle, horse and sheep men who have not asked for the boun- ties, taking as their reward the fact that they have disposed of the cause of the slaughter of their calves, colts and lambs.

While the lions have grown less com- mon in the southern part of the ter- ritory, there has been no decrease in their numbers in the wilder northern regions. Sheepmen in the San Fran- cisco mountains have complained of late that the lions were killing off all their lambs. Warden McCarty has taken the matter in hand, and with five experienced lion hunters and two score trained lion dogs he expects to rid the country of the pests. He will organize with the cowboys and sheepholders a large party which will scour the dis- trict where the lions are most com- mon. The animals will be driven into the center of a circle where they can be killed.

The California lion is a small species of the panther family. It is about the size of a Canadian lynx and possesses a similar nature. It is cowardly and has never been known to attack a man unless cornered, but is capable of a fierce fight when driven to bay. Mc- CARTY is a collector of specimens for Yale, Harvard, Cornell and other uni- versities and expects to send them trophies of the big hunt.

"PRINCE AUTO'S" SERMONS

Young Man Takes Tenderloin Hab- itues in His Auto to Lecture Them.

Shortly before 11 o'clock on every fine night there suddenly drops into the Tenderloin—from just west of one seems to know—a handsome victoria automobile and, after circling around a bit, comes to stand in front of the Hay- market, says the New York World. The machine is an elaborate affair, easily distinguishable from others of its kind by a powerful searchlight in the center of the dashboard operated by a storage battery under the seat. Suspended between the rear wheels is a red lantern.

The victoria is operated by a fashion- ably dressed young man, who is said to be the son of a wealthy western clergyman. He has been sent east to perfect his education, but he spends more time with the blond haired women of the Tenderloin than he does with his books.

The machine hardly comes to a stop before the word is passed through the dance hall that "Prince Auto" has ar- rived, and the women flock about beg- ging for a ride. Picking out a woman, the "prince" will escort her to the vic- toria, and off they will go for a half hour in the park, in Chinatown or on Fifth avenue. At the end of 30 min- utes the victoria will slide noiselessly up to the Haymarket, and, handing the woman out, the "prince" will dash in for another companion. This per- formance will be repeated until the dance hall is closed at 3:30 a. m.

The real name of "Prince Auto" is Willson Kayne. Little more is known about him. The same girl is never taken twice, and the auto never stops during the ride. As she alights each girl is presented with a box of expen- sive confectionery, which usually con- tains a slip bearing a Bible verse.

The "prince" is jolly and entertain- ing and refined in manner. He always urges the women to lead better lives. He declares that he was never made for a bookworm and that he would much rather study human nature than chemistry.

Alleged Pickpocket Arrested.

A man named Baldwin was arrested Carnival Day by Officer Twolin on a charge of picking pockets. There were several complaints to the police on that day of robberies, and it became evident that a gang was working the town. Two other suspicious characters were also arrested, but were released for want of evidence. Baldwin's trial takes place today before Judge Webb.

At 2:14 o'clock Mr. Burns in spirit of fun asked him to give him the five dollar gold piece which he had, and when Mr. Arnsperger pulled it out of his pocket and presented it to him he was speechless with surprise.

Wonders Never Cease.

The latest is the anniversary clock that needs winding only once a year, and runs as accurately as the brilliant orb of day. Its mechanism is the result of a peculiar ingenuity that constantly strives to produce something new. The things of yesterday must be supplanted by the things of today; hence the anniversary clock, a handsome, unique and accurate timepiece, with all its parts finely constructed and enclosed in a glass cylinder, so that its entire anatomy is visible to the naked eye. This clock may be wound on any anniversary day, and it will keep the even tenor of its way, faithfully recording, with the passage of each particle, the flight of time, until the next anniversary day occurs. Then you wind it again, and so on. The first one of these clocks to be seen in Paris was imported by A. J. Winters & Co., and the same is now on exhibition at their store.

HINTON'S delivery wagons are never idle. The people know where to get fine furniture at low prices.

CARNIVAL A SUCCESS.

Garth Lodge, A. O. U. W., Carried Out Every Detail of a Big Programme.

Wednesday was a record-breaking day in Paris. At 4 o'clock in the morning the firing of the salute of twenty-five guns proclaimed the advent of the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration or Silver Jubilee of Garth Lodge, No. 43, A. O. U. W. Early in the morning the weather was threatening, and it looked as though the festivities would be spoiled by rain. But the sun chased the clouds away, and by the time the visitors began to arrive the weather was all that could be desired.

The crowd was an enormous one. Every train brought extra coaches, loaded to the platforms. There was a constant stream of vehicles on every road leading into town all the forenoon, and the lively stables were taxed to their utmost capacity.

The festivities opened in the morning with a foot race for boys, which was won by the male belonging to John Cain. The handsome cup offered by A. J. Winters & Co., for the handsomest decorated turnout, was won by Mr. Oakford Hinton.

At about 1:30 the parade was started and it proved to be the largest ever seen in Paris. The assignment of the different lodges, bands, etc., was as follows:

Platoon of Police.

First Regiment (O. N. G.) Band of Cincinnati.

Drill team of Garth Lodge, A. O. U. W. of Paris.

Garth Lodge, A. O. U. W. Lodges.

Cynthiana Brass Band.

Paris Lodge, No. 3, F. & A. M.

Bourbon Lodge, I. O. O. F.

A. J. Lovely Division, Uniform Rank K. of P.

Paris Lodge, No. 373, B. P. O. E.

Richmond Tribune Band.

Maumee Tribe, No. 43, Imp. O. R. M.

Paris Fire Department.

Decorated Carriages.

The line of march was down Pleasant to the Windsor Hotel, up Main to 12th, down High to the Court House, where it disbanded.

Undoubtedly the hit of the parade was made by Maumee Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men. They were continuously cheered along the line of march by the crowd which packed the sidewalks and windows. The chase of the pale face (Jeff Elgin, Jr.) up Main street was a very laughable and exciting affair.

The display of fire fireworks in the afternoon was a decided novelty and a pleasing one, and was witnessed by a multitude of people.

The drill team of Garth Lodge performed their evolutions in a roped square near the Agricultural Bank, and their work reflects great credit upon themselves and Captain S. E. Borland.

At about 4:30 o'clock the balloon ascension took place, but was in the nature of a disappointment, as the balloon failed to arise to any extraordinary height, and when Prof. Esch cut loose in the parachute he was hardly more than hailing distance from the ground.

In making the drop the Professor, in order to steer clear of alighting on a boggy, impaled himself on the iron picket fence in front of the residence of Buckner Woodford, injuring himself severely.

The display of fireworks in front of the Opera House at 8 o'clock was thoroughly enjoyed by a large crowd. At 8:30 o'clock the curtain rose in the Opera House to a packed audience, and the following program was rendered:

Robson and Judith Hunkin in songs and cake walks, which as usual with these two clever children made a hit.

Mr. James Ray McCann in a couple of character recitations was again warmly welcomed by his many friends.

The Centralian Quartette, of Lexington, rendered several fine selections, as did also the Elite Mandolin Quartette.

Misses Genevieve Roche and Judith Hunkin, assisted by Master Herbert Berry, performed a sketch entitled "When Reuben Comes to Town." Both the singing and dancing of these three clever children made a big hit.

The violin class of Miss Esther Margolin, consisting of Misses Retta Sullivan, Lucille Price and Louise Grinnan, assisted by Miss Margolin, rendered some beautiful selections. Each one of these young ladies played beautifully and reflected credit on the abilities of their instructor.

One of the hits of the evening was the Twin Brothers' Lilliputian Quartette, who sprang into instant favor with the audience. Their singing is wonderful, considering their tender years.

The decided hit of the evening was the sketch entitled "The Pickaninny Frolic," participated in by Masters Cullie and Herbert Berry, Harry Saloshin, Harry Talbott, Horace Sprake, Douglas Boone, Robert Roche and Miss Camille Roche.

R. S. Porter and George Browner perpetrated a sketch entitled "The Doctor's Office Boy." Mr. Browner's work as the Irish doctor was good. Mr. Porter, as the office boy, owing to this being his first appearance before the footlight, will be forgiven this time, provided it don't happen again. Rick Thomas was good as the elevator boy.

After the performance a banquet was partaken of at the Odd Fellows Hall, which was enjoyed by about three hundred persons.

Mr. ALEX WEISSEND, of this county, found the slip of paper thrown from the balloon Wednesday, given by Heyman & Co. Mrs. Henry Santon found the slip good for a case of beer, given by New Current, agent for the Jung Brewing Co.

Mr. George Kiser, of The News office, got the case of beer offered by Geo. Lyons. Uhlman Lancaster found the straw hat donated by H. M. Collins & Co. Mr. J. L. Robbins found the slip good for a knife given by Winn & Lowry.

Notwithstanding the enormous crowd in town there was very little drunkenness or disorder, and taken altogether the day was a big success.

You Do, or You Don't Need Gasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting.

Examinations free. Next visit Thursday, June 27, 1901.
